From the publisher. The purpose of this book is to provide a critical examination of human use of alcohol across cultures and through time, thereby providing a framework for undergraduate students to self-consciously examine their beliefs about and use of alcohol. Almost all books written about alcohol for college students have a "problems" perspective, either clinically (alcohol as a drug) or societally (as deviance, or a social problem). Many students have problems responding to these approaches. Understanding human use of alcohol anthropologically is a refreshingly different and effective method of harm reduction, which can be used by instructors to teach students how to reduce potential damage to themselves and others, while at the same time conveying the "anthropological imagination."

Restaurant guides typically give readers a singular viewpoint. Eating Las Vegas triples the ante, offering reviews from three local food critics who hail from completely different generations, backgrounds, lifestyles, and tastes and usually disagree on the merits of any particular restaurant. After countless arguments over lunch, Las Vegas' best-known dining writers accomplished the impossible and came up with a list of the eateries all three could recommend. In Eating Las Vegas, John Curtas, Max Jacobson and Al Mancini spotlight the 50 restaurants about which they could agree were must-stops for foodies, tourists, and locals searching for an unforgettable meal in a city that boasts more than 2000 places for eating out. As added bonuses, Eating Las Vegas features lists of the best restaurants in a dozen categories and a special veto section, including some of the eateries prized by one critic and rejected by the others.
